

- Jobs
- Cars
- Real Estate
- Apartments
- Local Shopping
  - Find Sales & Deals
  - Shop Local Stores
- All Classifieds
  - Create an Ad
  - Find an Ad
- Dating

- News
- Sports
- Entertainment
- Business
- Tropical Life & Home
  - Books
  - Family & Parenting
  - Food
  - For Women
  - Gardening
  - Gay South
- Florida
  - Health
  - Home
  - People
  - Pets
  - Shopping
  - Religion & Values
  - Style
  - Travel
  - Weekend
  - Wheels & Waves
- Opinion
- Visitor's Guide

- ONLINE FEATURES
- Today's Front Page
  - Email Newsletters
  - Message Boards
  - Calendar
  - Contests
  - Special Publications

Back to Home > Entertainment >

People

Posted on Wed, Sep. 21, 2005

J.Lo and Marc do their part

Husband-and-wife singers Jennifer Lopez and Marc Anthony are urging their fans to help young victims of Hurricane Katrina by donating money to a children's charity, reports IMDB.com

The pair have pledged a substantial sum to the Children's Health Fund's Operation Assist -- and they want others to follow suit.

"The truth is, the people who are going to be affected the most are frail, are children, are the elderly," Lopez tells Entertainment Tonight, "and [with] this organization, the money goes directly to health care and helping these people and getting them well. . . . This is a great, great charity if you're looking for something to donate to."

The Children's Health Fund's Operation Assist is sending mobile healthcare units to help victims throughout the Gulf region.

