

Children's Health Project of Detroit

The Children's Health Project of Detroit (CHPD) provides primary care and behavioral health services to children, regardless of health insurance coverage or ability to pay. The clinics are located within more than a dozen schools in Detroit, Lincoln Park, and Macomb County. Additionally, the project utilizes a mobile medical unit that travels throughout CHPD's service area. Using mobile and school-based clinics allows the program to reach children and adolescents who might otherwise face barriers to accessing care. The sites are youth-friendly and age-appropriate and allow clinicians and service providers to meet young people in spaces where they spend most of their waking hours, feel comfortable, and are open to learning.
